And he gave him the name Jesus. For example, when King Herod asks the chief priests and teachers of the law where the Messiah was to be born, they quote Micah 5: It concludes with a reminder that the response to the kingdom will have eternal consequences, and the crowd's amazed response leads into the next narrative block.

Before the gospels, that understanding was focused on the revelation of Jesus. This quote from Jesus roots his teachings in the tradition of Jewish Law—which was very important to Jews and much less relevant to Gentiles. The first section also describes the miracle birth story of Jesus. It is an artistically written book and proves to be consistent with the other three gospels in The Gospel of Matthew Bible; Mark, Luke and John regarding the historical events that occurred during the life of Jesus on earth.
