I think you hit upon a couple of points that I really think about right away. The Cognitive Enterprise gives you the combined expertise, experience and wisdom of popular business commentator Bob Lewis and executive-suite consultant Scott Lee.

A humorous look at what Management says vs. But the planners always win.

In many ways this could be considered the best size of team to develop a web app, with fewer prominent issues to address than the solitary sole founder or the bureaucratic large team. This book introduces its 21st century replacement – customers, communities and capabilities – and explains how this new model works in a connect-and-collaborate world.

BBCM gives you all seven of the critical tools you need when planning a business. I wrote this book for all the poor schmucks out there who have been thrown in front of projects and have no idea what to do. No trivia or quizzes .
